There's lot of talk re: XLM and XRP. What really sets your company apart? (Or rather XLM and XRP/Stellar and Ripple apart - are both providing different solutions?

Also could you please elaborate on your tie-up with Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation? How exactly do your solutions help the needy and bridge the gap that we unfortunately face in society (evident even more so in the digital sphere)

I think three things really set XRP apart from any other digital asset. One is the amazing team of dedicated professionals that Ripple has managed to amass to develop an ecosystem around XRP. The other is a focused use case for XRP and a coherent strategy to drive adoption for that use case. Last, the set of real customers finding business value in it. The history of technological innovation around the XRP Ledger speaks for itself.

The Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation's Mojaloop project is aimed at providing national open source infrastructure for interoperable payment systems. The project uses the interledger protocol (ILP) to create that interoperability. Ripple collaborated with several other vendors and the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation to put this project together. The thinking is that interoperability lowers cost and enhances reach, making essential services more accessible.

Director / Crew Alex Gibson - Assistant Director and Background Coordinator - Anything you want to know about the film industry I am happy to share with you.

Good day everyone!

My name is Alex Gibson. I am an Assistant Director and Background Coordinator in the Canadian Film Industry (Hollywood North). I've worked on shows such as The Stand, Lost in Space, Peacemaker, Shogun, Pachinko, Motherland, Spiderwick Chronicles, Yellow Jackets, and currently an unreleased Apple + TV Series.

I've had the pleasure of working with actors such as Alexander Skarsgard, James Marsden, Hiroyuki Sanada, Jennifer Holland, Freddie Stroma, the entire Lost in Space cast, and many others. I've also worked with Amber Heard and Ezra Miller on the same show.

I would love to offer everyone a chance to ask questions about the film industry, why
